Election First Monday in August, 1890.

Hon. George H. Pendleton is dead at Brussels.

It does look as if the Australian ballot system is bound to come.

Hon. J. B. Mason died in Lancaster on the 21st, aged 67 years. He was a member of the Legislature of 1877-78.

The new Brazilian Government has extended the right of suffrage to all citizens, except those who cannot read and write.

Mrs. Mary Agnew has been appointed one of the seven new school commissioners of New York. Women are rapidly filling educational offices.

Gen. Lew Wallace has invented a steel railroad cross-tie, designed to supplant the wooden ones. The mind that invented Ben Hur can certainly invent a cross-tie.

We now have the United States of Brazil, the United States of Columbia, and the United States of America. Let the United States of Canada be forthcoming.

An article in the constitution of Brazil declares that "each State will form its own local government." Brazil is therefore democratic as well as republican.

Mardi Gras at New Orleans, February 18th, is to be celebrated with unusual splendor. Rex will enter the city with bewildering grandeur. The Crescent City has no equal in such displays.

The weakness of prohibition as a political issue is shown by the fact that in Iowa it has beaten down a clear majority of 61,000 to 10,000 the other way. High license is the sensible temperance reform.—Baltimore Sun.

The decision of the New York courts that the will of the distinguished lawyer and statesman, Samuel J. Tilden, is invalid, is another demonstration of the adage that a doctor is not capable of practicing in his own case. Had Mr. Tilden written a will for any one else, it would have withstood the test of courts.

PAROLED.
The Sinking Fund Commission under the provisions of the parole law, last week released from the penitentiary, one John Taylor, of Boyle county, sentenced to serve a life term for murder. His victim was a woman, and the murder was as cold-blooded as possibly could have been. But Taylor is 80 years old, and has served twenty-two years. His days are nearly spent and probably it is well for him to go hence.

MORE SILVER MONEY.
The question of increased silver coinage will in all probability be put prominently before the coming Congress. By law as much as $4,000,000 per month can be coined, but certain western Republicans want the law changed so that $4,000,000 per month be compulsory instead of optional. At present, and for some years past, the country seems prosperous with $2,000,000 a month. Then why not increase?

LABEL SUITS SETTLED.
Some months ago, Auditor Fayette Hewitt filed damage suits in the sum of $50,000 each against Owensboro Inquirer and Covington Commonwealth. These suits have now been settled and dismissed. The statements in the editorials in the Commonwealth and the Inquirer to which Gen. Hewitt objected were, the fact is, by implication, admitted that he knew of the Tate defalcation, as far back as 1883. The terms of the compromise are that the answers of the defendants will admit that the evidence does not show such admission on his part, or, in other words, that the papers withdrew the charge that he had any knowledge of the matter before Tate's flight. We are glad that the trouble has been adjusted. We never agreed with our newspaper friends in their charges, yet regarded the editors as honest in their expressions.

That Kentucky never had a more conscientious or capable Auditor than Gen. Hewitt is our firm conviction.

A STRANGE CASE.

Some weeks ago a man, giving his name as Martin Flynn, was picked up on Broadway, corner 39th street, New York, by the police and conveyed to a hospital. He was wounded in several places about the head, and an eye knocked out. He said that he had been assaulted with an umbrella in the hands of an unknown man. Last week he died.

Upon seeing in the newspapers the announcement of Flynn's death, Major Stewart, of Texas, whose efforts in behalf of the Confederate Soldiers Home at Austin have made him both famous and popular, called in a reporter and stated that he was the man who inflicted upon Flynn the death wound. He said that in company with his wife on the day that Flynn is said to have been wounded and about the hour in the afternoon mentioned by Flynn and at the precise spot where Flynn was picked up, he met a man who walked in his passing, whereupon he (Stewart) struck the ruffian numerous blows with an umbrella. But he was astonished to find that they were fatal.

Almost at the precise moment when Major Stewart was relating his adventure in his office on Wall street, a merchant named May appeared at the 13th street police station and said he wished to surrender, as he was sure he inflicted upon Flynn the mortal wounds. He related that on the afternoon mentioned at the corner of Broadway and 39th he met a man who seized him by the throat and demanded 25 cents. In the effort to break away he thrust his umbrella into the fellow's face, inflicting a wound on the pavement. Major Stewart said Mr. May had never heard of each other, nor do they know who it was they encountered. Neither thought he had inflicted a mortal wound but upon reading that Flynn had died from the effects of an assault with an umbrella at Broadway and 39th, each supposed himself the perpetrator.

Flynn mentioned but one man as having struck him, nor can the police, the detectives or the reporters hear of but one altercation at the particular time and place above mentioned.

Usually the State is troubled with finding the doers of crime, but in this case too many have been heaped upon her.

AN EDITOR LOOSE.

(Percipiscia.)

This is the way the editor feels when he does up his sentiments in blank verse.

"I would flee from the city's rule and law—from its fashions and forms cut loose—and go where the strawberry grows on its straw, and the gooseberry grows on its goose; where the catnip tree is clump and the catnip cat, as she clutches for her prey—the guinea and the unsuspecting rat on the rat-bush at play; I will catch at ease the saffron cow and the cowlet in their glee, and they leap in joy from bough to bough on the top of a cowslip tree; and I will dig the partridge drums his drum, and the woodcock chuck his wood, and the dog devours the dogwood plum in the primitive solitude."

"Oh, let me drink from the moss-grown pump that was hewn from the pumpkin tree! Eat mush and milk from a rum-stump, from folly and foolishness free—gathered muck from the mushroom, and milk from the milk-weed sweet—with pine apple from the pine. And then to the white-washed dairy I'll turn, where the dairy-maid hastens hither, her ruddy and golden breast to churn from the milk of her butterflies; and I'll rise at morn'g with the earliest bird, to the fragrant farm-yard, and watch while the farmer turns his herd of grass-hoppers out to grass."

LOUIS O'SHAUGHNESSY.

The colored people celebrated the anniversary of Emancipation Day in Louisville, yesterday.

John D. Starks, a colored man has been appointed postmaster at Brandenburg, the county seat of Meade county, Va., for worthless dogs. Claims amounting to $1,347 were put in for the sheep, and the county supervisors allowed $1,344. It is doubtful if all the dogs in Augusta county are worth the amount they have inflicted on the taxpayers this year.

The Baltimore Corn and Flour Exchange has been moved but little by reports of the Brazilian governmental revolution, and yesterday yesterday was steady. A magnificent business was up before the Baltimore grain trade, and there are already forward charters for 5,000,000 bushels of grain, principally for corn. With this showing for Baltimore's winter grain trade, the members say that competing markets will probably get jealous and wonder how on earth Baltimore manages to do this business.—Baltimore Sun.

Did you ever see a man who bred and raised the high class of American hunting horses for his product? Did you ever hear him complain of horse raising being an unprofitable business? Did you ever hear him express a regret that he had quit raising scrubs? Did you ever hear him complain about the collection of first-class stallions? Did you ever hear him say that he was in doubt about the proper kind of horses to raise, and a careful study in the matter will help you in your decision.—Carlsruhe Mercury.

The National Grange convened at Sacramento, Cal., last week. The report of the foreign relations committee favoring the building of American ships, the ownership of small farms and the restriction of foreign immigration, was adopted at the meeting of the National Grange. A resolution was adopted condemning the single-tax system; memorializing Congress in favor of the manufacture of jute and other textile fabrics for use in cotton bagging, and of an appropriation for silver coinage and paper money independent of national banks in sufficient quantities to prevent financial embarrassment.

The bride is a cousin of Mrs. C. T. Fox and Miss Maggie Parrish, this place, and visited them recently. The Transcript, of the 20th, says: "A very effective wedding took place yesterday at the residence of Rev. J. S. Shouse, when Miss Mattie Parrish, of this county, and Mr. J. W. Pettit were made one in a stylish wedding dress of brown cloth, trimmed with beaver, and a hat to match. ## Catarrh

May affect any portion of the body where the mucous membrane is found. But catarrh of the head is by far the most common, and the most liable to be neglected. It cannot be cured by local application. Being a constitutional disease it requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Ringing Noises working through the blood, eradicates the impurity which causes and promotes the catarrh, and soon cures a permanent cure. At the same time Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up the whole system, and makes the blood pure in strength.

Impure Blood from catarrh, sure to be cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. "I used Hood's Sarsaparilla for catarrh, and received great relief and benefit from it. The catarrh was very disagreeable, especially in the winter, causing constant discharge from my nose, ringing noises in my ears, and pains in the back of my head."

Hood's Sarsaparilla The effort to clear my head in the morning by taking and spitting was painful. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me immediately, while in time it was entirely cured. I am never without the medicine in my house and I feel it is worth its weight in gold."

Mrs. G. M. Ginn, 122 Eighth St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

Cures Catarrh "I was troubled with that annoying disease, nasal catarrh, and never found relief till I took Hood's Sarsaparilla." J. L. Bortz, Marksburg, Ky. N. B. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Sold by Druggists, $1.50 per bottle. Prepared only at Hood's Sarsaparilla Co., Lowell, Mass.

100 Doses One Dollar

Catarrh Can't Be Cured

With LOCAL APPLICATION, as they cannot reach the disease, and in order to cure it you have to take internal remedies. HALL'S CATARRH CURE is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surface. HALL'S CATARRH CURE is no quick medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in the country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surface. The perfect combination of two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh.

A Man Who Sings for Years.
Two years ago Herman Harms emigrated to Utica, Minn., from southern Illinois, where he had long suffered with fever and ague. Shortly afterward he found it impossible to keep away from the swampy country, and he remained there nearly nine years. Three years ago he moved long enough to work in the harvest field part of the season, when the lethargy returned. At the end of three more years he again moved to a new place, and he remained there for a few days, and again returned. Each day he returns to consciousness for a brief season, but the spell of sleepiness comes on once more, and away again, and the man is as oblivious as though he were dead. He has been treated with tonics, quinine, and even strychnine, but without effect. He is now at the end of his life, discouraged at the dark prospect on the farm, committed suicide, and a little later the second boy died.—Boston Budget.

Mrs. L. Hamilton is building a residence on Main street, next to corner of Armer, and the same has been rented to Dr. C. D. Patten for a term of years.

Claude Wamsley committed suicide at his home in Versailles last Wednesday on account of the poor outlook in business affairs. He was interested in a saw mill in this county.

Sportsmen will find something of interest at Breck & Fitzpatrick's. They have a stock of elegant antelope and open front stoves, and invite you to call and see them after reading what they say in another column.

Richmond is trying hard to keep up with Winchester, and last week held a meeting for the purpose of organizing a Street Railway company. Committees were appointed to investigate the cost, etc., and if the scheme appears plausible the road will probably be built.—Winchester Sun.

At the annual meeting of the Court of Claims of Henderson county, a proposition to buy all the turkeys in the county was submitted. There are thirty-five miles of good gravel road-beds all in good condition. Three different corporations own these roads and the price is placed in the aggregate at $100,000. The court declined to entertain the proposition, preferring to let the people take the matter in hand at the polls. The question will be submitted to the popular vote.

Big Price for Turkeys.
Mrs. P. P. Fox has sold to Sam Quisenberry, of Clark county, 100 bronze turkeys for $100. She has 35 left. This is the best turkey record of which we have heard.

Exchanged Houses.
Homer G. Baxter and John McKenna have swapped residences. McKenna giving Baxter $1,400 to boot. They transferred both real and personal property yesterday, so that Baxter now lives down by the mill and McKenna up at the cemetery.

Killed the Fatted Calf.
A private letter from Mrs. J. H. Walls, formerly Miss Nannie Lator, says that they arrived at Sweet Springs, Mo., in fine style, and were met by a band of music and numerous friends. A reception was given them and they were made to feel much at home.

Big Thanksgiving Dinner at the Glydon.
The proprietors of Hotel Glydon, Messrs. Willis & Adair, will set the most magnificent dinner to-morrow, ever seen in Richmond, and have given their artist carte blanche to do his best, and that is a great deal. If you feel inclined to partake of an elaborate dinner, drop in at the Glydon.

In Colored Circles.
Tom Miller and Bettie Turner were married at the residence of Douglas Mitchell, in this place, on Thursday, November 21st, 1889. Rev. Crowder performed the ceremony. Reception at the groom's mother's on Friday evening.

Thomas Turner and Elizabeth L. Bennett will be married at the A. M. E. church on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, by Rev. Crowder. All colored.

Powell, resigned; Mrs. Sarah Gentry, Rulo, Rockcastle county; T. J. Cress.

Winchester Court.
J. A. Ramsey, auctioneer, reports 500 cattle on the market, nearly all fat to good grades. The following public sales were made: 37 good feeders, 1,105 lbs. at $3.20; 31 fat feeders, 950 lbs. at $3.02½; 50 good feeders, 1,200 lbs. at $3.15; 37 good feeders, 1,150 lbs. at $3.75; 8 extra feeders, 1,313 lbs. at $3.51; 32 common steers, 770 lbs. at $2.05 good yearlings $7.50 to $20; a number of private sales of hogs were made at $3.35 to $3.50. A much better feeling prevailed among cattle men and all offerings sold at prices ranging from ¼ to ½ cent higher than last Court. A strong demand for good feeders with inadequate supply.

Cattle For Liverpool.
Mr. J. W. Bates shipped twenty cars of cattle, yesterday, 11 for Newport News and 9 for Baltimore. They are for Lehigh Bros., Baltimore, and will be shipped direct to Liverpool, England, for the Christmas market. From Mr. Wm. Arnold 67 of the cattle were purchased, and from Messrs. Parrish & Douglas 92. Sixty of Mr. Arnold's heaviest averaged 1750 pounds, with five pounds over to the lb. Parrish & Douglas' 91 averaged 170 pounds, and 40 of the heaviest, four years old, known as the Hume cattle, made the weighty average of 1589 pounds. The price paid was 4½ cents all the way round, or about $12,700 for the shipment. Last week Mr. Bates shipped 15 cars for the same firm.

Another Man.
A special from Flemingsburg to the Louisville Post of the 15th inst., says: Mrs. Mary Waller, of Elizabeth, 5 miles west of here, yesterday had removed an ovarian tumor weighing over 60 pounds and the chances this morning for her entire recovery are very flattering. The operation was performed by Dr. Lucien McDowell, grandson of Ephraim McDowell, known wherever surgery is practiced as the father of ovariotomy. This is an error. Dr. Ephraim McDowell has been granddaddy in the medical profession. The operation above mentioned was performed by Dr. L. S. McDowell, of this city.—Danville Advocate.

An Inventor Dying.
C. M. Keiser, the inventor of the hemp-hoop, is dangerously ill at his home in Fayette county. He is in his 84th year. While overseas on the farm of the Rev. Robert J. Breckinridge, Mr. Keiser conceived the idea of cutting instead of pulling hemp. He employed a blacksmith and gave him an outline of the "hoop." With the first trial it was a success, and soon every laborer on the farm was using a hoop, and the hemp was off the field before the neighbors were aware of what was transpiring. A revolution was thereby worked in the production of hemp, and that hardest of all work, pulling hemp, was forever put to rest.

State Equal Rights Association.
This association was held in Lexington, last week, continuing through several days. Numerous papers on various subjects were read and discussed. The association is gaining strength. Officers were elected: Miss Laura Clay, President; Mrs. Mary B. Clay, First Vice President; Hon. W. R. Ramsey, Second Vice President; Mrs. M. H. Johnson, Third Vice President; Mrs. E. B. Farmer, Corresponding Secretary; Miss Annie Dean, Recording Secretary; Mrs. S. H. Shepard, Treasurer. The following delegates to the National American Convention, which convenes at Washington, D. C., in February 1890, were elected: Mr. C. F. Farmer, Mrs. E. B. Farmer, Covington; Mrs. Mary B. Clay, Richmond; Mrs. Annie M. Dean, Lexington; Mrs. Sarah Randall, Bowling, London; Mrs. James Bennett, Richmond.

Samples of Pension Frauds.
The Editor of the Portland Oregonian, the leading Republican paper of Oregon, writes that he knows of his own knowledge that "since the passage of the Act of Pension Act, about every shirk and utterly worthless veteran of his brigade has been a successful applicant for a pension." In one case a wagoner, who lost his leg by tumbling off his team while he was drunk, got a pension on the plea that he had lost it in action with the enemy. In another case a man swore to having received injury in a battle in which he was not present, and described his regiment as supporting a battery, when it was in a thick wood, distant half a mile from any artillery. In several instances within the editor's knowledge men who escaped from service by shooting off their fingers, have received awards of pensions as if for honorable wounds.

$500 And Twelve Months.
The case of the State against J. O. Embry, charged with stabbing with intent to kill J. E. Gaitskill, by change of venue from Clark county, occupied several days of Judge Morton's court at Lexington, last week. The jury returned a verdict on Friday finding the defendant guilty and fixing his punishment at $500 fine and imprisonment in the county jail for one year.

The defendant was represented by Congressman W. C. P. Breckinridge, Judge George Denny, Hon. James H. Mulligan, Ex-Senator Rodney Haggard and Judge W. M. Beckner. The State was represented by Mr. C. J. Dromston and County Attorney John R. Allen.

The Mt. Sterling Sentinel-Democrat says that Mr. Embry was forced into trial without being ready.

There were seventy-five witnesses for the State.

Mr. Embry was unfortunate in having his case to follow so soon after the Goodloe-Swope tragedy, as the jury will for a time be unusually severe.

Embry was sent to jail where he will be compelled to remain at least until the Court of Appeals passes upon the case.

Along the Way.
In New York, we saw Mr. Eugene Walker, son of Owen Walker, deceased. He looked unusually well and is practicing law, having an office on Nassau street. He boards at Murray Hill Hotel, a veritable palace with the finest office on the western continent. Mr. Walker has a trotter he carried with him from Richmond, and is greatly admired as he drives through the spacious parks.

In Philadelphia, we saw Dr. David C. Lyman, son of the late Dr. A. B. Lyman, of this place. He owns a prominent corner lot at Germantown avenue and Sixth street, and has a nice drug store and a good business. He has a handsome wife and two children, and seems prosperous in every way. He too has a Kentucky horse.

In Baltimore, we found that Rev. Marshall, formerly pastor of the Christian church in Richmond, is preaching to a large congregation, having been stationed there for some time. He is the father-in-law of Mayor J. S. Collins.

In Washington we found Congressman J. B. McCreary snugly located at the Shoreham, a new hotel erected and owned by Vice President Morton. Mrs. McCreary had not arrived, but was expected.

The Operatic Concert a Success.
The Breddell grand operatic concert at the Court-house, Friday evening, was favored with a large audience. Mlle. Breddell presided at the piano in her usual masterful style. The piano solo of Miss Jessie Williams were brilliant renditions vociferously applauded. Mr. F. H. Adair's vocal solo, "The Ship on Fire," confirmed the public belief that he is a singer of rare power. Miss Jessica Campbell belted the audience with her matchless singing. She is likewise an actress as well as a vocalist. Mr. Duer assisted everybody with his splendid voice, backed by a princely physique. Mrs. T. S. Moberley and Miss Dora Harker executed careful training of their rich sweet voices. Messrs. A. D. Flora, T. E. Arnold, E. H. Palmer, E. E. Mitchell, T. S. Moberley and Sanford Logan acquitted themselves nobly in the double quartette and four-part songs. Miss Jennie McDowell made an excellent granddaddy in the opera of "The Coronation." Miss Della Ramsey as Little Peter, and Miss Mary Pattie as Jennie acted their parts well. Miss Annie Frazee, Maria-ville Smith, Marie Harber, Sudie Russell, Lala Bonister, Lucy Crow, Julia Higgins, Mattie McDowell, Helen Bennett and Rella Harber mingled their voices effectively with the "chorus of good fellows." Financially the entertainment was also successful, clearing probably $125.

Mrs. Goodloe's Son-in-Law Appointed.
The President has appointed Mr. Thos. McDowell to fill the office of Collector of Internal Revenue, made vacant by the death of Col. William Cassius Goodloe. Mr. McDowell is a son-in-law of the deceased and although only about twenty-three years old, he is to be a good man for the place. He is the son of Major Henry C. McDowell, the owner of Ashland. His mother is the daughter of Lieutenant Col. Henry Clay, who was killed at Buena Vista, he a son of the distinguished Henry Clay.

There were several gentlemen who wanted the place, and they made the point with the President that the interests of the Republican party would be injured should Mrs. Goodloe be appointed, as none of Col. Swope's friends would ever receive recognition in the district. The President, however, said that "the trouble between the men had been washed away by their blood, and was therefore at an end."

There were others, not applicants, who objected to any lady being appointed to an office with such important and complicated duties.

The post-office at Lexington was suggested to the President by the friends of Judge Thomas who was an applicant for the office of Collector, and the point made that subsequent administrations, even Democratic ones, would not deprive her of the office.

Charley Blythe to Hang.
The case of the State of Ohio against Charley Blythe, late of this place, for the murder of Col. Jones in Cincinnati, last summer, was called in the Common Pleas Court, Cincinnati, last Wednesday, Judge Kuhlmer presiding.

The State was represented by attorney Schwartz and assistant attorney Littlefield. Blythe was defended by Mr. Robt. C. Pugh.

The indictment charged the defendant with the commission of murder for the purpose of robbery.

An intelligent jury was secured from Hamilton county, outside of the city. Testimony was heard as to circumstances and confession. Blythe was then put on the witness stand and made a statement of the tragedy. He said that he was in the stable when Col. Jones came in and cursed him for not having pulled the weeds out of the garden, ordering him to go at once to that work, and striking him on the shoulder with a stick as he went out the door. That he turned suddenly, seized a club and struck Col. Jones on the head, knocking him senseless to the floor. He took the watch to provide money for escape, and pawned it. After he discovered the man dead, he went into the sewer and succeeded without detection in hiding the body, he decided not to leave the city, but went next morning and paid his rent.

The case was argued on Thursday and the instructions were most liberal to the accused.

Charley maintained a uniformly quiet but intense expression throughout the trial, his countenance never changing in the slightest. The remark of attorney Littlefield that "so cool, so calculating, so remorseless a villain he never saw," had no perceptible effect on the prisoner; nor did the remarks of his lawyer, Mr. Pugh, when he said, "gentlemen, the best we can expect at your hands is imprisonment in the penitentiary, for a long term of years—perhaps for life."

Mr. Pugh's speech was an able one. Judge Kuhlmer remarked to the editor of THE CLIMAX that it was "powerful as a defense as he had ever heard." Mr. Pugh said to us that he had no hope.

The jury was out an hour or two and returned a verdict of guilty in the first degree.

Frank Buford, colored, formerly of Richmond, said when the case went to the jury that Charley had lived at his house, and he knew all about the case, and that he feared the worst.

Col. Goodloe's Will.
The last will and testament of Col. Wm. Cassius Goodloe, attested by Judge J. R. Morton and Thos. McDowell, has been admitted to probate. It is as follows:

Believing in the uncertainty of life and the certainty of death, and feeling that justice to those I most love and cherish imperatively requires that I should do all things best calculated, in my judgment, to promote their happiness and secure them, so far as I am able, from want, or the dependence on charitable friends for support, now be it known by this my will, that I, William Cassius Goodloe, of the city of Lexington, and State of Kentucky, being of lawful age and sound mind, and in the enjoyment of health and all my faculties, do hereby make this my last will and testament.

First—I desire the payment of all my lawful debts, according to expressed agreement, and without regard to using law.

Second—The payment of all my funeral expenses.

Third—I will and bequeath to my wife, Mary E. Goodloe, all my property of whatever description—real and personal—that I may possess at the time of my death. All of said property is to be wholly and entirely hers, to do with living as she pleases, and to devise by will to whomsoever she chooses at her death. There must be no misunderstanding about this; all property of whatever description must be owned, held and enjoyed by my wife, Mary Elizabeth Goodloe.

In this making provisions for my wife, I thereby make the surest provision possible for my darling children; having full faith and confidence that her motherly instincts and natural affection will, during her life, insure the gratification of their every want and rational pleasure. I am content to believe that at her death she will make such an equal distribution among them of her entire effects as would meet with my assent were I living.

The Navassa Rioters on Trial.
On Tuesday last week the cases of the United States against the rioters who murdered five of the phosphate Company's officers—Mahone, Foster, Fales, Shea and Marsh—on the Island of Navassa, West Indies, September 14th, were called in the district court at Baltimore, Judges Bond and Morris presiding. After nineteen challenges by the defense and five by the prosecution, a jury was secured.

District Attorney Hayes consumed two hours in his statement of the case. He said that the murders were committed so that about seventy of the miners could escape to Hayti and thereby avoid further work on the island, and the payment of indebtedness to the company. That the ring-leaders and their accessories were of recent importation to the island and finding that there was more work than fun, and having made more purchases at the commissaries than their wages would pay, they became dissatisfied.

Attorney Hayes further says that there was no trouble or complaint whatever up to the time that Superintendent Geo. V. Tipton died on September 4th. That the prisoners and their comrades united in their words of esteem for the deceased superintendent. The attorney also said that the punishment inflicted upon several offenders by Acting Superintendent Smith between September 4th, and the day of the riot, September 14th, was the same that was in use in the United States Navy and the Army of Great Britain.

Dr. C. D. Smith, the Acting Superintendent above mentioned, was the first witness and occupied the stand four hours. He detailed the horrors of the riot in a most dramatic way and held the crowded house in breathless silence. He is an educated and accomplished gentleman and gave both an intellectual and minute description of the tragedy, the days of anxiety, and suspense, and his experience with the remaining officers, to the British man-of-war, Forward. The doctor testified that a large number of the miners were friendly to him and the other officers or all of them would have been murdered. They were not expecting any trouble, and had allowed their guns and pistols to become rusty and otherwise unfit for immediate use, and their cartridges chucked away in places rather promiscuously. Even after the riot was begun he did not think it was going to assume the proportions that it did.

Mining boss C. W. Roby occupied the stand for a long time and corroborated Dr. Smith in all his statements. Mr. Roby was the first one to be killed. He was struck from the rear at the mines and left for dead. When taken to headquarters Dr. Smith sewed up the scalp wounds with thirty-two stitches, and, by the way, it was a remarkably fine piece of surgery.

A number of other witnesses have been examined, most of them colored, corroborating Dr. Smith. The trial continues and will occupy several days.

The Tates Creek tunnel was completed, last week.

The towers of the Kentucky River bridge on the Jossamine side are complete, and those on the Madison side are above high-water mark.

There remains but a little masonry at the Kentucky river bridge, a little at Matine Creek, and some dressing up to be done to complete the road bed as far as Goggins' lane.—Nicholasville Journal.

Engineer Pearson has condemned all false work over creeks between here and the river. The engine is too heavy and the work on the Madison side are above high-water mark.

A corps of engineers engaged by the Commercial Club of Mt. Sterling, began surveying a line here yesterday morning and headed for Clay City. The work will be prosecuted without delay, and lines between this city and Indian Fields between this city and North Middle town, will also be run as soon as possible. The object is to ascertain the probable cost of building railroads on these lines.—Mt. Sterling Sentinel-Democrat.

The Covington Commonwealth says: "It is known that at least for two months it has been the intention of the Kentucky Central Railroad Company to erect their new shops in this city, because the order for the machinery for the shop was given at the Richmond Car-Max. He must be vain of his long-continued corporatorship.—Stanford Journal.

PERSONAL.

Mr. R. C. H. Covington is in the cities purchasing goods.

Mr. C. H. Pigg, of the grocery firm of M. H. & C. H. Pigg, is in Cincinnati, purchasing Christmas goods.

Mr. E. T. Burnam entertained a number of ladies and gentlemen with an elaborate supper at the Glyndon, Friday night.

Col. R. E. Edmonson has resigned the management of the Lexington Chautauqua. This is unfortunate for the Chautauqua.

Mrs. Eugenia Hume and daughter, Mrs. Ed S. Hume, of Madison county, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Rowland the first of the week.—Danville Advocate.

Miss Mary Rowland is visiting her old home, Richmond, and is the guest of her friend Miss Fife. Both of these young ladies are much admired in Lexington.—Lexington Transcript.

Miss Carrie Duke, the talented young violinist, is still in Berlin prosecuting her musical studies. She wears short hair and looks a veritable German student.—Lexington Transcript.

Miss Dollie Higbee's story "In God's Country," has created much favorable discussion in Gotham, it is said.—Lexington Transcript.

Miss Higbee once taught school near Richmond, and boarded at Mr. George P. Deatherage's.

The reception held by Mrs. Mary Wiley Jones on Wednesday night, in honor of her guest Miss Susie Crowneell, of Lexington, was a most charming affair. Mrs. Jones was assisted by Misses Corinne and Lucile Blackburn, Miss Pearl Voorhees, Miss May Tarr, of West Virginia, and Miss Kate Payne, of Georgetown. The parlors were filled from 7 to 9 o'clock with a fashionable gathering from Lexington, Midway and Versailles. The number of beautiful women and handsome costumes that graced the occasion was especially notable.—Versailles Sun.

As Miss Lindner, the subject of the subjoined paragraph from the Lexington Press, once visited Mrs. A. T. Millon, this place: Mrs. Lucile Lindner Whittemore, of Detroit, the former vocal soloist of this city, won fresh laurels for herself Sunday night, when she sang to a large assembly at the First Baptist Church. Her principal selection was "Abide With Me," the composition of her whilom instructor, Prof. De Roode, who accompanied her on the organ. She also took a solo part in the beautiful anthem "O Be Joyful," and a duet with Mr. Hornsey, with the whole choir in the chorus.

Mr. Pigg complains of feeling better.

The statement that Miss Caldwell is to marry a son of Marshal Murt is a little off, as the Marshal was killed in 1815.

Stanley, the explorer, sends a message saying he is safe at Mpwapwa. It occurs to us that he is yet a long way from Fox-town.

Thomas Jefferson was arraigned in a New York Police Court, one day, last week, on a charge of larceny and John Morgan for assault.

Not so much dust on the streets now as there was last August. After all, it was probably better not to have a street sprinkler, as it would now lapse into disuse.

The Broadway street car company, New York, has offered the city $150,000 a year to allow cable cars on Broadway. Cable cars on Main street in Richmond can be had for less money—our council is not so grasping.

A first street merchant bought a horse. He is not, strictly speaking, a horse man. He noticed that the horse stood up all the time, so far as he could see. One day last week he found him standing asleep. He tried his best to make him lie down, but he wouldn't do it.

The Courier-Journal, in describing the K. U. Land Company's great mill at Clay City, speaks of the 150,000-horse-power engine, and says, "two hands saw cut up a log at one sawing." We are constrained to say that we never heard of saws that saw like those handsaws saw. Most likely the C. J. means hand saws.

French Tipton has the exceeding bad taste to print his own picture in his paper the Richmond CLIMAX. He must be vain of his long-continued corporatorship.—Stanford Journal.

The quadrennial conference of the Methodist church in session at Richmond, Va., decided against the admission of women to the pulpit.

meeting of the Methodist Preachers' Association yesterday by a complaint made by Rev. Dr. Roode, of Brooklyn, that Methodism is declining in New York City and Brooklyn. He said that every church in New York from St. John's to One Hundred and Eighteenth street now looks for maintenance to the church societies. "Try as we may," he said, "and use every endeavor it is impossible to get a congregation. This state of affairs is not the fault of the ministers engaged in the work, for I have filled my pulpits with the most able preachers and the body of the church had not been half filled. There is no use trying—employ every device—you can not secure a congregation."

The cornerstone of the new house of worship of the First Reform church of Brooklyn was laid at the corner of Seventh avenue and Carroll street this afternoon. The church is the oldest in Brooklyn, having been organized in 1760, when the Rev. Henry Stevens was sent out from Amsterdam, Holland, as its first pastor. Services were then held in a barn. The church has had a number of places of worship, the first having been on the road which is now Fulton street, between Lawrence and Bridge streets. Its third and fourth meeting houses were built on Jordan street, the corner of the corner of city hall on the site sold two or three years ago to Mr. Willoughby for $20,000. The new church will be 100 by 167½ feet, with a stone tower and spire 212 feet high. The interior will give a cathedral effect, with the seats, however, arranged in amphitheatrical form, and will accommodate thirteen hundred persons. The building was designed by L. L. Morse, and the style is a modern rendering of the thirteenth century Gothic.—New York Post, 12th.

The speech of Cardinal Gibbons before the Catholic Congress at Baltimore yesterday was a prose poem. It was full of the gentle, but courageous, the lovable and heroic personality of the man who uttered it. It was the result of profound religious conviction, mingled with patriotic fidelity. The immense audience listened with willing ears, rapt attention and open hearts. In a word, it was all that the magnificent occasion called for. May we be permitted to say, however, that the speech of our eloquent friend, Mr. Dougherty, was hardly attuned to the concert pitch of the Cardinal. He carried his audience back to the persecutions of colonial days and drew a sombre picture of the hardships to which Catholics were subjected. It is all true, but, alas! there was no class of people in this country at that time which had not suffered at least equally. The colonists were all men with the brand on their brows. These shores represented one prolonged cry of distress. Every grave was practically the grave of a martyr for conscience sake. But these days are happily gone, and we do not recall them. Brotherhood, has supplanted sectarian hatreds, and throughout the length and breadth of the land every one is free to worship as he will. Catholics and Presbyterians live in amity, and the old denunciations are heard no more. We give our greeting to that congress, with the belief that its discussions will widen the scope of the church's influence and increase the loyalty of its constituents to itself and to the country.—New York Herald.

It is reported that John Jacob Astor, the controller of $150,000,000, and Mrs. R. R. Bowler, of Cincinnati, are engaged to be married. At the time of Mr. Bowler's death he was a large owner of securities of the Kentucky Central Railroad. Mr. Astor met Mrs. Bowler in New York while she was visiting Mrs. M. E. Ingalls, nee Williams, of Cincinnati. He is 60 years old.

A. H. Lator has been raised among you, he has been on the South side of Main Street, commencing in a small way, he has gradually built up a business whose patrons are numbered all over Madison county. His stock takes in every single item in the grocery line, his store being loaded. He has made additions and improvements to make room for the large stock he has recently bought in the city, consisting in part of a great variety of Christmas goods. There is no empty pot on about A. H. Lator, but he holds along in the even tenor of his way and gives value received for what you spend at his house. Don't fail to give him a call at his stand opposite Bonanza Mills, where you will always find a welcome.
